The RAVANELS

By HARRIS DICKSON

THE deepest impression of Stephen Ravanel's childhood days was the cold, still face of his father, who had been assasinated. That impression lived with him always. He came of a proud and passionate race, and he waited for a certain hour. and the story of their virtues always inspires to grander purpose and higher ideals.

"Sixty years ago, in the county of Nelson, a venerable man was conscious of the approaching shadows of death. As the world was pissing from the human sight and the vell which hides from human eyes the splender of that land where dwell the immortals, was being rent in twin, he received by post a letter which told that in far-off Kentucky there had come into the life of a beloved daughter a son, who was to bear his name.

Dr. Woodward is a most agreeable speaker, his discourses are thoughtful, and expressed in beautiful language, and his manner is convincing. Vocal selections will be rendered by Miss Frances Diggs, Miss Belle Powell, Miss Mabel Diggs, and Mr. Oscar Lohman. In addition thereto, the regular orchestra will be augmented, and will give several numbers. In view of the length and attractiveness of the exercises, members of the school and congregation are urged to be present promptly at 9:30.

The severe storm last right caused a postponement of the bleyele races at the auditorium. In order to carry out the full programme, there will be a matthee this afternoon, beginning at 2:30 o'clock and running for two hours. The regular programme will be carried out at the usual hour to-night. The attendance during the week has been most encouraging, and the interest has been deep.

The contests to-day and to-night promise to be by far the most exciting, as the various contestants will begin their spuris for the finish, and with individual efforts to win out in the great race. Monroe is a favorite, and Root and Butter have many friends in the crowds that nightly go out to see them. The finish is expected to be something of a "heart disease," and there will be a great crowd out to see the wind up. Probably the building will be packed.

There was quite a number of persons disappointed last night, but as the storm came up fust at the time the people would have started out, it was thought best to postpone until to-day, so all the enthusiasts could see the continuous performance.
